LANSING—(AP)—Public opinion as building up today to break a legislative deadlock which had, at least officially, an important appropriation measure.

The bill, dead until either Republican or Democratic leaders allow their pride enough to move for its reconsideration, provided $12,260,643 for next year's operations of the State Police, Civil Defense, the National Guard and Veterans' Affairs.

After a grim floor fight in the house yesterday, 13 Democrats lost 'No' votes on the bill.

No Sessions Monday

The 64 'Yes' votes, including all Republicans voting and some Democrats, fell three votes short of the two-thirds necessary. The bill carries grants to veterans' organizations. Grants to private agencies need a two-thirds vote under the constitution.

The measure is eligible for a reconsideration, but this cannot be before Tuesday. Both Houses are skipping the Monday session because of Democratic county conventions.

Husband Found Guilty In Wife's Freezing Death

JACKSON, Mich. — (AP)—Convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the death of his wife by freezing, Edward G. Spencer today faced a possible prison term of one to 15 years.

A jury of nine women and three men convicted the 45-year-old trucking executive in an hour and 35 minutes yesterday. Circuit Judge John Simpson said he would sentence April 1. Spencer's $5,000 bond was continued.

The three-wed Spencer admitted leaving his attractive 21-year-old wife, Loretta, lying in their covered driveway after an evening of drinking Dec. 19. She is found frozen to death next morning.

Spencer testified he had tried to drag her home, but that his wife "folded up like a jackknife" and he fell in the snow, too. He said he blanked out, but apparently staggered into the house and went to sleep.

The jury interrupted its deliberations to ask Judge Simpson about Spencer's responsibility on the morning of Dec. 20. He told the jurors it was the same as on the previous night—to watch out for his wife's safety.

Spencer had testified that when he found his wife in the driveway next morning, he bent over her and heard her muttering, then went inside and called police. Later he testified, he walked past the prostrate woman to go down the road to direct authorities to the spot.

In February the measure carried 295 to 293 but 10 spoiled ballots resulted in a ruling that a majority of all votes cast was necessary for passage and the issue lost.

Truman Expected To Blast GOP At $100 Feed Tonight

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
WASHINGTON — (AP)—President Truman tonight is expected to blast the GOP at a $100-a-head dinner.

Truman is expected to announce that he is going to seek another term.

But Democrats closer to the President seemed to have the general opinion he probably won't tip his hand in an address here at the $100-a-plate Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner.

They looked for Truman to come up instead with a blast at the Republicans in the "Give 'em Hell" style of his 1948 campaign. Along with many other southern Democrats in Congress, Maybank is supporting Sen. Russell of Georgia for the party's Presidential nomination.

Six Ford Union Officials Fired

DETROIT — (AP) — The CIO United Auto Workers administrative board that is running Ford Local 600 has fired another six men from their union posts. Previously five had been bumped out.

The administrative board took over on orders of the UAW's international executive board after witnesses testified before the house Un-American Activities committee that Communists had infiltrated officer ranks of Local 600 and were dominating its actions. Carl Stellato, local president, heatedly denied the accusations.

Stellato's appointed assistant, William Johnson, and Percy Llewellyn, the local's director of human relations and political action, were fired from 600's staff yesterday. They still can go back to their factory jobs.

The other four fired from union posts were committeemen in the Dearborn engine plant. All had been appointed by Paul Boatin, former chairman of the engine plant unit and who was among the first five administrative board members.

Boatin was among those named as Communists before the House committee.

Johnson and Llewellyn were among a committee working in defense of Boatin and the other four fired unit officers when they were tried more than a year ago as Communist sympathizers by the Local. The trial board convicted the five, but the Local's general council rejected the verdict.

Red Charge Of U. S. Germ War Fizzles

(By The Associated Press)
Soviet charges that the United States is waging germ warfare in North Korea and Red China are meeting in general with disbelief outside the iron curtain countries, an Associated Press survey showed today.

It is impossible to tell what effect the Soviet charges are having on the populations in the Communist countries. They get only one side of the story—the Soviet side.

Won't Permit Checkup

One of the chief aims of the Soviets is to sell the millions of people in southeast Asia the idea that the Western Powers have no compunction against unleashing the dreaded weapon of germ warfare to further "Western Imperialism."

The United States and Britain demanded that the International Red Cross or the World Health Organization be permitted to send experts into Communist China and North Korea and report what they found. The Communists replied with a scornful no.

British Foreign Office officials believe the Communist refusal to permit such inspection has blunted the effect of the Red propaganda on the minds of Asian peoples. But the officials admit that counteracting the "big lie" tactics of the Soviets is a tough task, and the Communists will have a victory even if they raise doubts in enough minds.

Bug Rumor Recalled
Newspapers in French-controlled

ed sections of Viet Nam, where the French are heading the fight against the Communist-led Vietminh, view the germ charges as just as ridiculous as the Communist accusations a couple of years back that Americans were dropping potato bugs in the Soviet zone of Germany and Czechoslovakia.

In Western Europe, as expected, officials and the press—with exception of the Communist organs—ridicule the Soviet germ war charges.

British officials and the press have hammered at the Red charges as baseless lies intended to win a propaganda victory in Asia. Official Italian reactions have been the same. The Italian press has given the charges scant attention.

French officials and U. S. embassy officials in Paris think the French public, as a whole, does not take the Red charges seriously. One Leftist, now-Communist paper even has satirized the reports in a cartoon showing North Korean soldiers equipped with Flit guns.

WASHINGTON — (AP)—A disputed Army audit estimate that the government's huge hush-hush polar airbase in Greenland will cost a billion dollars came under Senate investigation today.

Col. Harry E. Reed, chief of Army audit, gave the estimate at a public hearing before the Senate preparedness subcommittee yesterday.

A civilian subordinate, Nathan L. Rubin, promptly called it "ill advised," and possibly based on rumors. But Rubin himself had said in an official audit report read to the subcommittee that the cost would "approach 10 figures."

Cost of the project has been a closely guarded Pentagon secret. Even its existence was concealed behind the code name "Operation Bluejay" until Soviet propaganda broadcasts and drunken workers returning from the site last year let out the secret that work was under way.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, (D-Tex.), the subcommittee chairman who smoked out the estimate from Reed, declined to discuss it later beyond telling a reporter, "we are going to study it intensively—we are going to study the whole matter."

Taft Has Hopes For Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE — (AP) — Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio said today he believes he will win handily in Wisconsin's showdown vote Tuesday on 30 Republican presidential nominating delegates.

But the Ohio senator told this reporter he regards the situation created by a five-state race and the injection of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's name into the primary as "peculiar" he is not claiming any sweep.

Most observers think Taft will have to out-distance his opponents here if he hopes to retrieve the national prestige lost in his New Hampshire defeat by Eisenhower.

The 30 GOP delegates will be elected on the basis of 10 at large and 20 in districts. Delegate slates have been entered for Taft, Gov. Earl Warren of California, former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, Grant A. Ritter of Beloit and Perry J. Stearns of Milwaukee.

Only Taft and Stearns, who isn't regarded as a threat, are running on their own. Stassen has offered to Eisenhower half of any delegates elected for him. Warren's delegate candidates have said they will support Eisenhower if the Californian drops out of the race.

Eating at the same table with the President will be Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois. Truman has neither denied nor confirmed published reports he asked Stevenson to become the administration candidate for President, and that Stevenson declined.

Five Men Bail Out Of Burning Bomber Over North Korea

TOKYO — (AP)—Five crewmen bailed out of a burning B-29 superfort enroute to a target in North Korea Friday night. The air force reported three of the crew were still missing today.

The bomber itself reached its base in Japan safely after the pilot had extinguished a blaze in one engine by plunging the superfort into a steep dive.

The five crew members parachuted on orders of the plane commander shortly after the engine burst into fire. The B-29 then was over the southwest coast of Honshu.

The pilot continued out to sea where he jettisoned his bomb load, and slipped into the diving maneuver.

Two of the five survivors were located by Japanese rural police near Kinisaki and Tokyooka on the southwest coast of Honshu, Japan's main island.

Six Producers To Confer With CIO President

By NORMAN WALKER
WASHINGTON — (AP)—A sudden peace move by the steel industry spurred hopes today that a scheduled April 8 steel strike may be averted.

The industry's six largest producers arranged to begin meetings Monday in New York with CIO President Philip Murray, head of the Steelworkers Union.

Price Relief Promised?

The facts that the bid for the meeting came from the companies and that they are willing to take the unprecedented step of bargaining as a group with the union seemed promising.

This indicated possibly the industry had been passed the word that the government was ready to give it the price relief industry has said was needed before it could make a wage deal with Murray for 650,000 basic steelworkers.

Murray himself carefully refrained from expressing any optimism, telling the workers from Pittsburgh they would be fully advised of any progress in the meetings, adding:

"It is not to be assumed that the convening of the conference indicates agreement upon the issues."

Something Happens

None of the stabilization officials here who have been wrestling with the price problem would talk. But negotiations had been in a stalemate, and now that they were suddenly revived, and in a business-like manner, seemed to indicate something had happened.

It was considered possible the industry had merely received ironclad assurances of a future price allowance — perhaps not to be given until the steel labor dispute had faded out of the public

Nine Warplanes Lost In Korea

By STAN CARTER
SEOUL — (AP)—U. S. Fifth Air Force lost nine warplanes over North Korea in the week ended yesterday, two of them in air combat with Communist Mig-15 Jets.

The weekly Air Force summary today said the bag of Red planes during the same period was four destroyed, three probably destroyed and nine damaged.

The two Allied planes lost in air battles were F-86 Sabre jets. Three F-86 Thunderjets were shot down by Communist ground fire. One B-26 light bomber, two Marine F4U Corsairs and one Marine F9F jet failed to return from their missions for unknown reasons.

Thunderjets dived through holes in overcast skies Saturday and shot up Red bunkers on the eastern front. Ground-hugging fog obscured most North Korean targets.

B-26 light bombers destroyed 54 supply-laden trucks on North Korean highways Friday night. B-29 Superforts attacked Red rail and highway targets at Sinanju and the rail yards at Hamhung.

There was a flurry of small Red attacks across the 155-mile battlefront late Friday and early Saturday.

SEOUL — (AP)—U. S. Fifth Air Force lost nine warplanes over North Korea in the week ended yesterday, two of them in air combat with Communist Mig-15 Jets.

The weekly Air Force summary today said the bag of Red planes during the same period was four destroyed, three probably destroyed and nine damaged.

The two Allied planes lost in air battles were F-86 Sabre jets. Three F-86 Thunderjets were shot down by Communist ground fire. One B-26 light bomber, two Marine F4U Corsairs and one Marine F9F jet failed to return from their missions for unknown reasons.

Thunderjets dived through holes in overcast skies Saturday and shot up Red bunkers on the eastern front. Ground-hugging fog obscured most North Korean targets.

B-26 light bombers destroyed 54 supply-laden trucks on North Korean highways Friday night. B-29 Superforts attacked Red rail and highway targets at Sinanju and the rail yards at Hamhung.

There was a flurry of small Red attacks across the 155-mile battlefront late Friday and early Saturday.

Armistice Held Up By Kremlin

By SAM SUMMERLIN
MUNSAN, Korea — (AP)—A U. N. truce negotiator said today "only the Kremlin knows" why the Communists adamantly insist that Russia help police a Korean armistice.

Col. Don O. Darrow said the Reds may hope to use the deadlock over Russia's nomination as a neutral inspector for propaganda purposes, "for trading material" or "for just standing still."

"The Kremlin is the only one that knows."

A news blackout five days old continued to hide any hint of progress in an adjoining tent where staff officers are trying to end the stalemate over how to exchange prisoners of war.

Staff officers working on truce supervision got nowhere during two hours of wrangling over whether Russia should serve on a neutral inspection commission.

The case went to the jury shortly before five o'clock Friday afternoon. The verdict was returned at 11:45 p. m.

Jurors who heard the case are Mrs. Florence Dube, Marcella Rappette, Mary Fontaine, Evelyn Alice Pintal, Elsie Priester, Edna Ambrose, Archie Potvin, Harold Walk, Roy Estenson, William H. Moras, Henry Gustafson and Lawrence St. Ours.

Mrs. Oriana Molloy, 88, Lathrop Pioneer, Dies

Mrs. Oriana Lathrop Molloy, 88, Upper Peninsula pioneer, whose father, Axel Lathrop, was the founder of the village of Lathrop, died at 5:30 p. m. Friday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gideon Stegath, 922 7th Ave. S.

Mrs. Molloy, a vital force in the community in which she spent the greater part of her life, was known to children and adults alike as "Aunt Oriana." She was a counsellor and guide to those who sought her aid, and these were many. Her home which often was called "the little house on the side of the road," was open at all times. Services were held there by a traveling missionary every two weeks and, according to her wish, will continue. Children gathered there to play or to make candy and cookies, and Aunt Oriana always received the first little bouquets of dandelions, violets or other wild flowers gathered by her young friends in early spring.

Expert on Herbs

She was an expert in the use of herbs and gave of her knowledge to all who had need of it. A lover of nature, she also was noted for her flower gardens, particularly iris, which she imported, and peonies. Aside from her humanitarian interests, she took an active part in civic affairs of her community. She followed the footsteps of her father, who was Lathrop's postmaster 27 years, and she served in the same capacity for the same length of time. She retired a few years back with pension.

In her active years she also was a promoter of the work of the W. C. T. U.

She was born in Choclay, near Marquette, March 5, 1864, a daughter of Rose Hannah and Axel Lathrop, who had moved to Michigan from Vermont. Her marriage to William B. Molloy who preceded her in death took place in Quinnesec in 1883. The family lived at Stambaugh for a few years and then returned to Lathrop.

Her only immediate survivor is her daughter. She also leaves several grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Alto Funeral Home at 2 p. m. Monday with the Rev. John Hamel of Marquette, Presbyterian missionary, officiating. Burial will be

Delta Hardware Offer Rejected

Striking union employees of the Delta Hardware Company of Escanaba last night rejected the company's latest wage raise offer at a meeting in Teamsters' Union hall. The strike is continuing.

Forty-four employees, members of Teamsters Union 328, A. F. L., comprising truck drivers, warehousemen and office employees, have been on strike since March 6. The company's latest offer of an additional 2 1/2 cents an hour was rejected by the union last night by vote of 33 to 9, with 42 of the striking employees present, according to Arnold Alsten, Teamsters' Union representative.

Company's Offer
Federal and state mediators have participated in the negotiations before and after the strike. John Fawcett, Delta Hardware company general manager, today said the company has offered the employees salary increases totaling 1/2 cents per hour retroactive to Dec. 6, 1951.

The present average wage for men in the office of the company is $1.11 per hour, he added. The present average wage for men employees on hourly rate is $1.35 per hour.

Benefits Are Cited
Other present fringe benefits of the Delta Hardware company are reported to include the following: Paid vacations, one week the first and second years, two weeks starting the third year; six paid holidays annually.

Group insurance of which the company pays part; pension plan available to the employees, of which the company's present cost is 13 cents per hour per employee.

There is no work on Saturdays or Sundays, and employees are given "liberal purchase discounts and credit terms," Fawcett said.

Black Soup Builds Up Weight, But It Has Vile Taste

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
NEW YORK —(AP)—You can gain a pound of weight a day on new soup, which looks like black coffee.

It is building up human strength before or after operations. It was the only food for 461 days for one woman while plastic surgery built up a new jaw and mouth, removed in a cancer operation. It kept another person alive for a year during a coma.

When laced with a little alcohol, single quart of the soup supplies 1000 calories, and proteins, minerals, sugar and salt. Many patients take three quarts a day, and eat other things besides.

You wouldn't want to drink it, it would taste vile. It's fed, drops at a time, through a small tube going through the nose to the stomach. The tube isn't irritating, and lets people eat and drink their things. The tube can be left for days or weeks.

Known as prolac, the formula as developed by Dr. John Elliott, Jackson Memorial hospital in Florida, and the Dade county (Fla.) Blood Bank, Inc. The soup is being tested also at Columbia University's college of physicians and surgeons here, and looks very useful, said Dr. John Scudder of Columbia.

One man here, his weight down 75 pounds and lacking appetite, soon gained 20 pounds, and underwent a cancer operation, Dr. Scudder said during an American cancer society tour of cancer centers.

The alcohol helps deaden pain cancer victims, Dr. Scudder added.

Resume Work On City's $900,000 Water Plant

Construction of a new water filtration plant for the city of Escanaba is being resumed by Pearson Construction Company, Inc., Benton Harbor, Mich., with the project scheduled for completion in November this year.

Work on the project was started last year, was halted during the winter months, and is now about 15 per cent finished, according to progress reports filed with A. V. Aronson, Escanaba city manager. Fred Beal, project engineer for the contractor, and A. J. Mellbom, who is general superintendent of the project, conferred here this week with City Manager Aronson and City Engineer Loren Jenkins.

Most Materials Here
Mellbom said it will be about two weeks before work can be resumed and progress this season will depend on weather conditions.

All of the materials for the water plant have been purchased and about 75 per cent of the materials have been received here, Beal reported. Included in materials received is most of the mechanical equipment for the plant. Reinforcing steel was delayed three months in being received here last year.

"Now we are prepared to go ahead as fast as the weather will permit," Beal said.

$900,000 Bond Issue
The cost of the plant construction under the contract with the Pearson Construction Company is $788,948.

Total cost of the project, including construction of the plant, and the extension of water mains in North Escanaba, is expected to exceed the $900,000 available to the city through a bond issue.

Originally the water plant construction cost, including engineering and some work by city crews, was estimated at $850,000; and the water main extension at $50,000.

11-Year-Old Girl Finds People Are Warm-Hearted

Through the generosity of many warm-hearted persons, Joyce McCoullough's confinement in St. Francis Hospital was not the bleak affair it was expected to be.

Joyce, an 11-year-old Indian girl with flashing black eyes and thick black braids, lost the fingers of her right hand when an axe slipped and struck her, while she was helping her parents cut wood near her home in Harris.

Because the little girl is one of eight children in the family, the nurses at the hospital realized that little money for extras would be available. "Adopting" Joyce, they began to provide her with story books and games to amuse her during her convalescence.

On March 24th, a picture of Joyce, who was at that time learning to write with her left hand, appeared in the Press.

Almost immediately, responses from sympathetic persons began. Get-well cards began to flow into Joyce's room. Elementary students took it on themselves to write cheering letters to the unfortunate girl. A Chicago resident noticed the picture and promptly dashed off an encouraging note.

Then came the presents. Story books, color books, paints and crayons, dolls, necklaces, hair ribbons, fruit and candy, a piggy bank stuffed with pennies, donations of money, and even an Easter basket were sent to her.

She is now attempting to answer her many cards and letters. It's a long hard job without the use of her right hand, but Joyce is determined to finish the task.

Tomorrow she will be dismissed from the hospital. She will go back to her home minus the fingers of her right hand, but she will smile and talk about the place and the people that made her "happier than I have ever been."

Extend Water Main
After all costs have been determined on the plant it now appears there will be about $30,000 left for water main extension, or about $20,000 less than needed. Some savings are hoped for in minor changes at the plant, however, and the cost total may be reduced, the city manager said.

The water main extension will be from near the C&NW Railway station into North Escanaba to serve the needs of a rapidly developing area. Present mains are too small to adequately supply the growing demands for water of industries in the north section of the city.

The city's contract with the Pearson Construction Company includes the razing of the present old water filtration plant at the foot of Ludington St. The pumping station, a smaller building, will be spared to temporarily serve the city for park equipment storage.

DO YOU KNOW?

That during the six months Ed Cox has served on the Escanaba City Council he has amazed everyone by his unusually wide knowledge of all of the problems of City Government. What is more important, but not so well known, is the fact that Ed has spent fifty to sixty hours of his own time in the City Clerk's office studying the records of City Council meetings for the past several years in order that he might do a better job on the Escanaba City Council. When asked recently about this unusual interest in City Government Ed said, "I have tried to learn all I can about the City Government so that I can do a better job on the Council for all of the people of Escanaba. Anyone who will make the effort to get all of the facts as I have done will know that there is no factual basis for criticism of basic City Management policies here in Escanaba."

His six months of work on the City Council has convinced everyone that Ed Cox will be a worthy successor of all of the other working men who have served so ably on the Escanaba City Council for the past twenty years.

YIELDS—Even the first year or two Ranger is equal to or superior to many of the uncertified varieties. After the second or third year Grimm and other bacterial wilt-susceptible varieties begin to thin badly. Ranger, uninjured by either cold or disease, continues to yield on a high level. Because the price of Ranger is so reasonable compared to uncertified varieties, it will pay you to use Ranger even in short rotations.

BACTERIA WILT RESISTANT—Bacteria Wilt, prevalent throughout the upper Midwest, greatly thins out stands and reduces yields of most varieties after the second year. Being Wilt Resistant, Ranger continues to maintain stands and produce good yields year after year.

WINTER HARDY—Quote from U.S.D.A. News Release No. 2329-50. "Certified seed of Ranger . . . will perform satisfactorily in Midwest . . . areas no matter where the seed was produced, according to Dr. M. A. McCall, in charge of field crop research for the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Tests conducted in 1949 at numerous locations . . . showed no significant difference between certified Alfalfa seed produced in Arizona, California, and Montana." The U. S. Department of Agriculture recommends Ranger without reservation wherever winter-hardiness is a requirement. Actually, Northrup King's Certified California Ranger is Northern Registered Ranger Alfalfa increased in California.

QUALITY—Ranger generally far surpasses, Northern origin Alfalfas in purity, color, plumpness, and germination, all of which contribute to better stands and crops, and cleaner fields.

NORTHLAND BRAND—Provides Certified Ranger Alfalfa quality at its best.

Civil Defense Appropriation Cut Makes Sense On Economy Basis

THE future that has developed in Democratic ranks because the Legislature has slashed state Civil Defense funds from a requested $1,900,000 to $271,000 reaches the core of the state's financial problem.

Surely if an item like Civil Defense cannot be drastically cut, then there is little hope that Michigan will be able to pare its budget down to a point where it will fit anticipated revenues.

Civil Defense may be of great importance to the people of Michigan, but it is impossible to convince the people of the state that this is true. Every community has gone round and round trying to organize a civil defense program—without any appreciable success. The citizens simply are not interested in watching for hostile airplanes nor in learning to be a fireman or policeman on emergency call. They are not interested in building bomb shelters.

The other day the Civil Defense people distributed a pamphlet designed to tell people what to have in readiness in the event of an atomic attack. Perhaps it is important that the citizens know these things but we'll bet there are not two dozen people in the whole state of Michigan who have prepared a kit in preparation for an atomic attack. And we doubt that it is possible to stir the citizenry sufficiently to get any appreciable number of them to prepare such kits.

Rep. Christman of Ann Arbor hit the nail squarely on the head with his statement to the Legislature that the people of the state are not excited over the danger of attack.

"All the money in the state is not going to cure the lack of enthusiasm by the people," he said.

The appropriation of $271,000 for Civil Defense permits the maintenance of a basic organization. It does not permit the blood typing of the citizenry or such other projects that may have been envisioned.

IT'S SLUSH SEASON

(Ironwood Globe)

Last week end's heavy snowfall was just the right amount and quality to be converted rapidly into slush by the sun's rays and daily rising temperature.

Since most sidewalks in range towns are not open, pedestrians still have to use the streets and roadways.

Motorists ought to bear this in mind and drive carefully so as to avoid splashing slush and mud on pedestrians.

The inconsiderate motorist who drives so that his vehicle splashes pedestrians can be held liable for cleaning bills and probably could be convicted of assault and battery, as well. At the very least he ought to be reported.

ELIMINATING TRAINS

(Marquette Eagle-Star)

Efforts to compel the Milwaukee Road to continue train service between Channing and Ontonagon in the Upper Peninsula are a repetition of an old story in various parts of the country.

The Michigan Public Service Commission issued an order directing the railroad to continue the service and the railroad has appealed to the courts, claiming it is losing money on the service.

Curtailing of railroad service in sparsely settled areas seems inevitable and is occurring regularly here in Wisconsin and elsewhere. At one time the western end of the Upper Peninsula had regular passenger service by the North Western railroad from Powers to Ironwood. That service long ago was discontinued for the same reason that the Milwaukee Road wants to eliminate service between Channing and Ontonagon.

Trucks, buses and especially automobile traffic have brought about the change which leaves patronage of trains at a perilously low ebb. Much as people of the Channing and Ontonagon areas desire train service, cold facts seem to support the Milwaukee Road when it says train service there is a losing proposition.

Questions and Answers

Q—What are some of the legendary feats ascribed to John Henry?

A—When laying track, John Henry could drive an eight-inch spike into a railroad tie and the solid rock under it—with one blow of a forty-pound hammer. He helped dig out the Big Bend Tunnel and worked faster than any twenty men put together. He died, hammer in hand, while trying to beat a steam drill in a contest.

Q—Has a standard distance and speed measurement for aircraft been established?

A—After July 1, 1952, nautical miles and knots will be standard distance and speed measurements for aircraft.

A Hawaiian dancer canceled an engagement because of foot trouble. My gosh, couldn't she shake it off?

Really How Much Is $85.4 Billions?

THE Chamber of Commerce of the United States recently prepared and distributed to its members throughout the country a map graphically showing the tremendous scope of the 1953 federal spending as proposed by the President's budget. It reveals that the government's anticipated expenditures in the next fiscal year exceeds the total of all the incomes of all of the people residing west of the Mississippi River.

Military spending alone—$51.2 billion—equals the combined income of all of the residents of Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas and Oklahoma.

Foreign aid spending $10.5 billion—equals the combined income of all of the residents of North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and part of Minnesota.

Other government spending—$23.7 billion—equals the combined income of all of the residents of Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Wisconsin and the remainder of Minnesota.

Did you ever see a $1000 bill? Perhaps not, but you know that even at today's inflated prices it will buy quite a stack of groceries. Well, a million dollars in crisp $1000 bills, laid on top of each other, will make a pile about eight inches high. But a billion dollars, also in $1000 bills, piled on top of each other, would stretch up into the sky over 100 feet higher than the Washington Monument.

To run the United States government in 1953 will require a stack of $1000 bills more than 85 times as high as the Washington Monument—or about nine miles in the sky.

Perhaps now you can better visualize how much money Uncle Sam proposes to spend in 1953.

How Not To Present A Newspaper Story

RADIO has taken a cue from the movie industry in the presentation of time-wasting, uninteresting folderol. We hasten to assure you that it will not happen to newspapers, or at least to this newspaper.

We are referring, of course, to the self-promotion of everybody and everything that may have participated in the production of a movie or a radio script.

We went to a movie the other night and flogged through about five minutes of preliminaries while the film recorded for posterity the names of all the actors and actresses, the author of the original story, who rewrote the script for film presentation, who designed the costumes, who directed the show and who produced it, who did this and who did that—most of it information of no interest to 99 per cent (and we think we're generous) of the movie audience.

And then when we returned home, we tuned in on a radio network show. Same story, only instead of dashing off this folderol at the beginning of the radio play, the radio people crammed it at the end. That was a concession to listeners because they could at least turn the dial if they desired. We stuck it out merely to see just how far this thing would go.

Suppose this bit of folderol was carried to the newspaper business. You would be subjected to something like this:

Story by Joe Blow from information gathered by J. H. Notebook. Edited by Sam Sharpe. Linotype copy by I. M. A. Printer. Proofread by Sharp Eyes. Makeup (and we're not referring to cosmetics) by John Doe. Stereotyping by A. Matrix. Press work by Peter Pressman. Delivered to your home by A. Carrier.

There could be more of this but we think you get the idea. And, anyway, you're probably weary of it all by this time.

And so are we.

What We Owe to St. Luke

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Saint Luke, author of the Third Gospel, was not one of the Twelve Apostles. But to him we owe a great deal of our knowledge about them.

For the history of the early church, we again depend upon St. Luke, whose Book of Acts is a valuable supplement to the Pauline Epistles.

Of the Gospel incidents, Luke was not an eye-witness (Luke 1:2), but in relating what eye-witnesses told him Luke brought to his Gospel the same power of narration so vividly displayed in his reports of things of which he was a part.

Could his power of description in the story of Paul's shipwreck in the Book of Acts be surpassed by any story of the sea? Or could his story-telling skill in the narration of the Parables of Jesus be excelled?

Two parables of Luke's are notable: the Prodigal Son, recorded only by him, and the Lost Sheep.

Though Man thinks in terms of numbers—we estimate the seriousness of a calamity by the number of lives lost—Luke, following the master, reveals God's concern for a single soul in his unforgettable parable of the Lost Sheep.

Of Luke, himself, we have a limited knowledge. References in Colossians IV in-

(Editor's Note—As the presidential campaign gets hotter, Drew Pearson today begins a series of columns dissecting the Democratic candidates for President. The first is Sen. Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, who next week faces his first primary test in Nebraska. Mr. Pearson is also conducting a poll of his readers on the Democratic candidates. By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Three years ago if anyone had told Senate old-timers that two freshman senators, Kerr of Oklahoma and Kefauver of Tennessee, would be battling it out for the Presidency in 1952, the prediction would have been called ridiculous.

Yet that's exactly what is happening in Nebraska next Tuesday. Furthermore, in view of the need of new blood in the Democratic party, it's a healthy development. And since the senator from Tennessee has been more publicized than the senator from Oklahoma, here is a bird's-eye view of the likable, Bible-pounding Bob Kerr who now aspires to the Presidency of the United States.

Senator Kerr combines a number of rare attributes. He is at one and the same time the most glib, one of the most powerful, the most genial, and probably the wealthiest members of the United States Senate. He also has a lot of courage—though some people call it gall.

Whether you agree with Bob Kerr or not, you can't help liking him. You also have to respect his piety. The fact that he teaches a Baptist Sunday School is not mere window-dressing. He takes his religion seriously. He also takes prohibition seriously, and is one of the few senators who never serves alcoholic beverages at his table.

UNETHICAL CONDUCT

But though religion also implies high ethical standards, the Sunday School-teaching senator from Oklahoma has brazenly flouted the Senate's standards of ethics and good conduct.

Senate Rule 12 was set up by senators in order to disqualify any member who has a direct pecuniary interest in a piece of legislation. Though the rule is not compulsory, precedent has made it customary. And, according to the Senate parliamentarian, it has been followed consistently for many years. Thus, Sen. Warren Austin of Vermont, now ambassador to the United Nations, disqualified himself from voting on a talc bill because he had investments in talc.

Senator Kerr, on the other hand, not only introduced the Kerr bill which would have had the effect of increasing the price of natural gas carried in interstate pipelines, but became its No. 1 lobbyist. He buttonholed senators, urged, cajoled and demanded that they vote for a bill which stood to make his company several hundred thousand dollars.

Finally, after the bill was vetoed by his friend, the President, Kerr and the attorney for Phillips Petroleum, ex-White House Counsel Clark Clifford, managed to lobby a ruling through the Federal Power Commission which accomplished the same price-hiking ends as the Kerr bill.

KERR'S WEALTH

Yet the senator from Oklahoma had several million dollars of pecuniary interest directly tied up in his bill to remove the Federal Power Commission's control over the price of natural gas.

Kerr owns oil and gas lands valued at a total of around one hundred million dollars. On this, he and his partner, who operate the Kerr-McGee Oil Industries Co., officially reported a 1949 gross income of $14,930,150 with a net income of $1,218,627. In 1948, their gross income of $14,930,150 with a net income of $1,218,627. In 1948, their gross income was $12,538,058, on which was paid an income tax of only $29,053—due to the generous oil depletion benefits given the oil companies under the federal tax laws.

Kerr's company also has at least four contracts to sell natural gas in interstate commerce, thus immediately benefitting from the law he battled through Congress. One is with Texas Gas Transmission Co., one with Southern Natural Gas, one with Trunkline Gas Supply, and one with El Paso Natural Gas.

These records are all on file with the Federal Power commission. Yet during Senate debate, none of his colleagues challenged the senator from Oklahoma regarding the ethics of his conduct in lobbying for a bill which meant a small fortune to his company, and which would cost northern housewives an estimated $506,000,000 a year in increased gas bills.

Kerr shook his finger under colleagues' noses, demanded that they vote "right," and made himself something of a nuisance; yet none of them asked why he did not abide by Senate Rule 12 and abstain from voting for his own pocketbook.

Queen Juliana To Avoid Swank Of Monarchy On April Tour Of U. S.

By LEONARD RUPPERT

NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK (NEA)—A smiling, matronly woman who embodies the solid virtues of the Dutch, as well as being their reigning queen, will renew American acquaintanceships during April.

She is Juliana Louise Emma Marie Wilhelmina, descendant of the royal house of Orange-Nassau, known as Queen Juliana of the Netherlands since her beloved mother, Queen Wilhelmina, abdicated in 1948.

People who see her in Washington, New York, Philadelphia, Tennessee, Georgia and Michigan will find it difficult to regard her as a queen because she is unassuming and neighborly. Many Hollanders still think of her as "Juliaantje," the little girl who skated on the canals and rode a pony.

Today at 43 she is devoted to her family, German-born Prince Bernhard and her four daughters. The Prince, whom she met and fell in love with during the 1936 Olympic Games in Germany, will be at her side during the American tour.

There will be none of the swank of monarchy in the tour of Juliana. It would not be in keeping with the character of Juliana or her husband.

However, the three days of receptions in Washington which will begin the visit and the visit to Dutch centers in Michigan which will end it will reflect the friendly relations between the Netherlands and a country widely colonized with its countrymen.

In between, the Queen will visit Philadelphia, spend a weekend with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at Hyde Park, have a three-day round of festivities in New York (including a Broadway show), spend another weekend resting at Sea Island, Ga., and tour the Ford plant at River Rouge, Mich.

A feature of the Michigan visit will be a call upon the city of ROYAL VISITORS: Queen Juliana of the Netherlands and her husband, Prince Bernhard, in a recent official portrait.

Holland, America's tulip capital. After Michigan, the Royal Couple will head for the West Coast, making their visit a coast-to-coast grand tour.

Throughout the entire trip, there will be ample opportunity for the down-to-earth queen to make friends. Friendship is a quality she has in good measure, a quality that has endeared her to her subjects.

It stems, largely, from her unregal upbringing. Her father, Prince Henry, once told her tutor: "Don't be any more indulgent with her than is necessary."

At the University of Leiden, she attended as a regular student. She was a member of the Women's Student Club, and her song—submitted anonymously—won the prize as the Club's "Song of the Year."

Juliana bestows the same ideas on her own children. Although 14-year-old Princess Beatrix is destined to someday succeed her mother on the throne, she and her sisters, Irene, 13, Margriet, 9, and Marijke, 5, are far from pampered.

They are not tutored privately, but attend a progressive school in the neighborhood of their home. And their habits differ little from those of their schoolmates. They even take their own lunch.

As Queen of the Netherlands, Juliana has only limited powers. All political decisions are made by responsible ministers.

The crown and its wearer, as in Great Britain, symbolize the unity of the nation in much the same way as does the American flag. And the resulting impact of royal actions is extensive.

Perhaps the most historic task Juliana has performed was that of presiding over the meeting, on Dec. 27, 1949, at which the 300-year-old sovereignty of the Netherlands over its Asian empire was transferred to the independent Republic of Indonesia.

In recent years, she has keenly felt the plight of the world's millions of refugees. Working to ease their sufferings, she has been in correspondence on the subject with President Truman.

When she arrives by plane in Washington, D. C., on April 2, Juliana will be setting foot on U. S. shores for the first time as a queen. But it will not be her first visit. As Crown Princess—when she was a wartime exile in Canada—she was welcomed here several times.

If a great battle is lost Parliament and the people can turn out the government. If a great battle is won crowds cheer the King.—Winston Churchill.

Good Evening...

By CLINT DUNATHAN

THE FIRST STEP—Sports fishermen are getting half a break in the walleye protection bill sponsored by Rep. Eini Erlandsen and trimmed down in committee under pressure of the commercial fishing lobby in Lansing.

The three areas restricted to sports fishing starting July 1 should have had May 21 as the effective date—to coincide with the opening of the walleye fishing season. But the commercial fishing interests prevailed and nets will be allowed in the three areas during the early season when walleyes are in the shallows.

Gordon McQuarrie, Milwaukee Journal outdoor editor, telephoned to ask who folks thought of the walleye bill, adding: "You know, there's a hell of a lot of interest in your walleyes among sportsmen down here."

We assured him that Delta county people were taking the whole affair in stride perhaps because they had become accustomed to controversy on walleye protection.

"Well, it's a foothold anyway," McQuarrie said. "Perhaps another year or two and the sportsmen will be able to have net-free water at the beginning of the season."

Note: After Erlandsen's bill was changed in committee to make the effective control date July 1, his effort to amend and make the May 21 opening date effective was voted down in the House. This resulted from legislative "misunderstanding," not opposition, said Erlandsen.

CAUSE AND EFFECT—The obvious effect of the later effective date in making the three northern Green Bay areas net free will be to the advantage of the commercial fishermen.

Both commercial and sports fishermen know that walleyes congregate in shallow water when warm weather sets in.

For the period from the season opening on May 21 to July 1 the commercial fishermen can set their nets as they have in the past, which means the nets will clutter shallows in three areas the sports fishermen hoped to call their own.

Another effect may be trouble—between the commercial and sports fishermen.

Anchor lines and prodders of sports fishermen's boats may damage nets; commercial fishermen will complain, and perhaps charge (as in past years) that sportsmen are stealing fish from their nets.

OF THE FUTURE—While the present bill, now on its way to the governor to be signed into law, is but a foothold as McQuarrie said—it is an achievement for the Delta County Walleye Protective association.

It represents a victory over the commercial fishing lobby in Lansing and indicates that sportsmen-conservationists are gaining in strength in the state.

At present the walleye problem is not acute. The once bountiful crop of walleyes, spawned in 1943, have been harvested—but a second crop is coming along although less plentiful.

Sports fishermen who became accustomed to catching walleyes to the limit now are lucky if they get a few. The time will come again, however, when the fishing will improve.

NEED COMPROMISE—Local commercial fishermen have in the past indicated their willingness to cooperate in having net-free areas designated for sports fishing.

It can be assumed their attitude is unchanged. They may not oppose a future amendment that would prohibit commercial fishing in the designated areas for the entire season.

For the good of both the commercial and sports fishermen and the community as a whole, walleye legislation should achieve a compromise. The present bill is a step in that direction.

Power With Words

By Dr. C. E. Funk

HOW THE WORD "ATONEMENT" The phrase "at one," meaning "in agreement or accord; in harmony; of the same nature," is very old. It has been traced to the beginning of the 14th century, and the fact that several records of its use at that period have been preserved making it probable that actual use was much earlier.

Chaucer used the idiom in "The Clerk's Tale," about 1386.

In the phrase, the preposition "at" has the sense "in a state or condition of"; thus the phrase means "in a state of unity or harmony."

The frequent use of the phrase in such expressions as, "to set at one, to make at one," the earlier use of "one" as a verb with the meaning "to unite"; the development of the term "atonement," meaning unity, and the accompanying phrase, "at onement," and finally, the 16th century pronunciation of "one" as a rhyme with "tone," all brought about very simply the compound word "atonement," which in its original sense meant nothing more than agreement, harmony, unity of feeling.

This development, and the subsequent verb "atone," with its first sense of "to be or to make at one, unity," occurred in the 16th century. These senses of "atone" and "atonement" are no longer in use.

Gradually the idea of becoming in unity, especially with God, drifted into one of restoring friendly relations (as with God) through some form of punishment. Therefore, today the usual senses of "atone," the senses in which it is most commonly employed, are: "To make expiation for; to render satisfaction for; to make amends for."

There is one sure way of cutting down on criticism—do away with all second guessers.

The average young man selects a solitaire by himself, says a jeweler—and a girl has a finger in it later on.

Most college students prefer formal parties, according to the dean of a college. One does get tired of wearing one's own clothes.

Ike Plays Both Sides Of Street

By ROBERT C. RUARK
NEW YORK—As a simple citizen I do not wish to know anything of Gen. Eisenhower's private plans—nothing inside, that is; no deep scuttlebutt. From here on, as one who may conceivably vote for him, I want him only on the record. You might even call me a man who wants to vote for Eisenhower, if Ike himself will make it possible.

But one thing clear I want, if I vote for Eisenhower, is for him to quit kidding around with politics on the one side and this NATO business, worth billions of our dollars, on the other. We are not asking the man to dance, you know. We are practically beseeching him to run for the Presidency of the United States.

Ike has played a real cute tune, so far, between his commitment to the forging of forces abroad, and his susceptibility to the political beckon. It is becoming a touch too cloying for my personal tastes. I feel a little like a guy in a trance when the many who may run for my money makes headline news with a warmed-over quote delivered two years ago.

AFTERNOON IN ISMAILIA—This Egyptian road, well-traveled by natives riding burros or carrying their loads atop their heads, might be the setting for a peaceful Biblical story. It might, except for the machine-gun, manned by a British soldier, that covers the road. The area near Ismailia has been the scene of violence and bloodshed among Egyptian rioters and police and the British troops stationed there to guard the vital Suez Canal Zone against Egyptian threats to "throw the British out."

Gruenther Substituting
Now he sends his chief of staff, Gen. Alfred Gruenther, over here to talk about what goes on with the union of European forces against aggression, a little item which will bite us initially for nearly eight billion. I don't want Gruenther talking for Eisenhower before the Congress in Washington. Gimme Ike. Gimme the H-coon. He's the boss of the show.

Come to mention it, the trouble so far with Mister-General Eisenhower as either a defense boss or a Presidential candidate is that too many people have been telling us what Ike thinks and what Ike believes.

It has been an exceedingly clever campaign from the first, with Ike peeping out from behind his position as NATO boss to wing at the boys in the political stag line. We have heard the politicians speak for Ike the politician; now we are hearing the military boys speak for Ike the military man. Somewhere the two-headed cat seems to have conquered Ike's tongue.

Ike Way Out In Front
Not even a member of the Communist party could deny the fact that in the public esteem Eisenhower is way out in front—and has made it all the way with no commitments. He has made no commitments, he says, because he is working for the President and the people of the United States as a commissioned officer, who has no political voice to utter in his own behalf as a politician.

You now read that the reason he isn't over here to give the Congress the full dope on the progress of NATO is that he is a candidate for public office, and his political program forbids his returning to this country until May. That, in my book, is a lot of double-gabble, purely designed to keep him off the hook on both counts.

Ike is way, way out in front, right this moment, but I can remember when Tom Dewey was way, way out in front on the day before election, too, and something awful happened to him in 24 hours. It is barely possible that this puss-in-the-corner operation of Mister-General Eisenhower can lose him some votes.

It was not long ago that Ike said he would never, never, ask for retirement for political purpose. Then the other day the letter pops up with the old escape hatch in it. . . Ike now reckons that the task of building the alliance in Europe is far enough along to allow him to bow out modestly in order to come home to politics. I would like the last one better if I hadn't read the former.

Mister-General Ike is beginning to stretch my one-vote patience, because now he is neither warrior nor stumper, on the record, but a sly, giggling wallflower, hiding behind his handkerchief. There is a rough possibility if he waits too long some of us suitors may not ask him to dance, no matter how pretty he looks in his party clothes.

Army Clamps Down On Dependents Of Soldiers In Germany

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY
FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The U. S. Army is moving ahead with its program of prohibiting dependents of enlisted men below the rank of sergeant from staying longer than 90 days in West Germany.

Under Army regulations, only the dependents of personnel from sergeant upwards are entitled to travel allowances, and housing when they arrive here.

If a lower grade soldier wants to bring his wife and children over he must do so at his own expense, and provide housing for them on the German economy.

These dependents obtain tourist visas from the German government good for 90 days, and the Army ruled that such visas cannot be renewed during any calendar year by unauthorized dependents who arrived after March 15.

Unofficial estimates said as many as 10,000 dependents may be affected, but Army officials said they had not yet compiled the figures.

The Army said it had not "ordered" any such dependents home but the visa ruling automatically barred them from remaining.

The Belnap

Ample Room And Closet Space

Rooms Seven
Bedrooms Three
Closets Ten
Cubage: House 24,000 ft.
Garage 3,800 ft.
Dimensions 64' x 37'

Open archways lead from the entry hall to the living room, on the left and the den or bedroom, on the right. There is a large closet conveniently located in the back wall of the entry hall.

Measuring 18' x 13'4", the living room has a large picture window in its front wall. Flanked by casement windows, this picture window does not extend the full length of the wall, yet it provides added decorative appeal for both the inside and outside of the house. It also serves the practical function of providing welcome extra light for the living room.

Centered in the left wall of the room, the large fireplace has windows on both sides. The long unbroken back living room wall will easily accommodate large furniture pieces. At the end of the right wall is a doorway opening on the hallway that connects with the dining room, the bathroom and the bedrooms.

Closet Space
An all-purpose closet opens on this central hallway, just to the right of the doorway from the living room. Across the hallway is the door to the 7'x6" x 11'x4" dining room. You'll find the extra large closet in the left wall of the dining room, very handy for a variety of storage purposes. If you want to use part of this extra closet as a storage place for clean table linen you can use the built-in china closet for china and glassware exclusively.

One large window in the back wall provides sufficient light and ventilation for the dining room. Near the long right wall would make a good location for your dining room set.

Opening directly off the dining room, the kitchen is strictly a work center. Working counters, complete with cupboards and cabinets, are arranged along the left and back walls of the room. There are extra working counters located against the front wall between the stove and the large broom closet. The refrigerator is directly next to the stove; the sink is under the double windows centered in the back wall of the room.

As there is no breakfast room in this 13'x8' kitchen, the adjoining dining room will be used for all meals.

In the left kitchen wall, the door leads to the 10' x 7' laundry utility room. Doors lead from this room to the back porch and to the front yard. Two windows in the front wall provide generous lighting and good ventilation. Stairs to the cellar lead down from the utility room.

The back porch, which can be screened or glassed in or left open, as you prefer, is 10'x8' in dimensions. This porch provides protected access to the garage, and other precious outdoors, opens on the central hallway just before the door to the right front bedroom.

Measuring 12' x 11'4", the front bedroom also enjoys the benefits of good lighting and cross ventilation. It has a window in the right wall and another in the front wall. There is one large closet in this bedroom.

One window in the front wall provides ample light and ventilation for the bedroom or den. This room, which is 12'x11' in measurements, has a large closet in its left wall.

One window provides ample light and ventilation for the 20' x 11' garage. You'll find ample area in this garage for storing screens, storm windows and doors, and garden tools.

There is both a tub and a shower in the all-modern bathroom which has one window in its back wall. The large closet, opening on the connecting hallway, just to the right of the bathroom door, can be used for linen storage. It is conveniently near to the bedrooms and bath and is large enough to hold a supply of fresh bed linen and towels.

Largest of the three bedrooms in "The Belnap," the back bedroom is 13' x 11'4"; can serve as the master bedroom. One window in the back wall and another in the right insure good cross ventilation and light for this bedroom. The large closet in the left wall and another large closet in the front wall guarantee plenty of storage space for the occupants of this bedroom.

What In The World?

By L. EARLE DAVIDSON
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia—Marshal Tito, one of the world's most controversial figures, passed through the fire of a typical American press conference during which no holds were barred. Although he has been interviewed many times before, his conference with our group of 50 editors was the first time in all his experience that he underwent rapid fire questioning and gave off - the - cuff answers. It was also the first time that pictures were taken indiscriminately during the conference and on-the-spot recordings made of significant questions and answers.

Actually Tito is an old smoothie. Although he holds a firm hand over both his government and his people, Tito is both gracious and hospitable as a host. During our one and a half hour conference with the communist dictator, he laughed and parried questions in a manner reminiscent of the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

We interviewed the marshal in his famous White Palace here in Belgrade, which is located in the hills about three miles from the center of town. As we entered the palace, attendants took our coats and hats in the outer foyer and dashed off into little rooms on either side to hang them up. Moving on into another large room, we were greeted by various English speaking members of Tito's staff, all of whom were young and well dressed. One of them, a girl who was born in the United States of Yugoslavian parents and who spent the first 18 years of her life there, was his personal secretary and interpreter. She spoke perfect English.

"Tiger" Is Official Greeter—From another room, still further inside the palace, we heard the guttural bark of a dog. It was "Tiger," the year-old German wolfhound who never lets Tito out of his sight.

Then we met the man who is hated by the Russians and their Balkan satellites more than any other individual in the world. In that moment of first meeting, everyone in our party was surprised completely. We had expected a man of stern features. We even envisioned him in that green-gray uniform with large flat shoulder insignia and high, gold braided military collar. That was the way he was pictured in every hotel lobby and store we had seen since being in Belgrade.

Instead, we were met by a man with smiling countenance, wavy steel-gray hair, and with his short, well-proportioned body immaculately dressed in an extremely fashionable, dark blue, double-breasted suit. He looked for all the world like one of those "men of distinction" we see so often in the national magazine advertising at home. He wore a large diamond ring, black cuff links, and used one of those funny little cigarette holders that look like a pipe, from which the cigarette sticks straight up.

Instead of standing and shaking hands with each of us as we passed, Tito stepped into the center of the group and edged his way along, meeting each of us personally. He then invited us to step into the big conference room, where he took his place at the head of the table and after a few words of greeting, invited us to fire away.

There are many problems—The first question was with respect to how long the marshal thought it would take Yugoslavia to recover from the effects of World War II and the civil strife which followed. Tito said he could not tell how long it would require to heal the wounds of war. He said everything possible was being done and that his people were grateful for the assistance being given them by the United States.

One of the editors wanted to know what Tito thought was the reason why Russia did not attack before the west was prepared, the inference being that, if an attack by the Soviet was really being planned, why should Russia wait until the western nations were ready to meet such an act of aggression. Tito said he frankly didn't know, unless it was because Russia, too, had many problems, such as proper management of her industries. He said he felt certain, however, that as long as good will between Russia and the west did not exist, the danger of attack would be present.

"Aggression is not a popular thing," he added. "That was proved during the last war. I believe that is why they have not attacked so far. But we know that if Russia can get something easily, she will do so. Therefore, I believe the rest of the world should arm to preserve peace. Any war would be a catastrophe to mankind." In passing, the marshal said it might well be that the people of Russia had not been psychologically prepared for war.

What About Korea—When the dictator was asked what he thought about Spain being brought into the western alliance, he laughed and said: "You won't get a positive answer from me on that one. I have my own opinions, of course. Spain is fascist."

When we asked Tito why Yugoslavia had not sent even a token force to help the United Nations in Korea, he said the sending of such a force would hurt Yugoslavia too much in her own relations with the nations around her. Then someone wanted to know whether Tito thought there would be any difference in the world situation if Russia were still governed by a czar. He replied that in his opinion there would be no difference as far as Russia's foreign policy was concerned.

Tito said the satellite nations were securing more and more military equipment from the Soviet Union and that recent deliveries included more modern weapons, including jet fighter planes. He said Yugoslavia did not have the military equipment it needed, but that he was satisfied the United States was doing everything under the circumstances to provide what it could. Certain kinds of weapons, which he did not specifically enumerate, were very badly needed, he said. He understood that America had budget restrictions, he declared, and that Atlantic Pact countries probably had first call on available armaments.

He reminded us, however, that Yugoslavia's personal contribution to the military effort was perhaps the greatest of all nations committed to the western group. He said that not long ago he had read where it cost $200,000,000 to oppose Russian aggression. "We have several dozen divisions," he said, "and we are very grateful for any assistance America can give us."

Letter of the law—When some of the editors challenged Tito's treatment of Catholic priests, the marshal tried to draw a parallel between the Yugoslav and American constitutional provisions regarding separation of church and state.

"Our policy has not changed," he said. "Those who complain do so merely because we are applying the letter of the constitution. There has been no deviation, no further change to the left. We permit freedom of worship. The Church can have its own schools, but they must be separate and apart from the public schools. In this respect we operate much the same as you do in the United States."

Then someone shot a question at the marshal regarding Archbishop Stepinac, who was recently liberated from prison after serving time as a collaborator with the Germans during the occupation. Tito was emphatic regarding Stepinac. "He is now a priest, but will never serve as archbishop in our country again," the dictator declared.

Surrender Marker Is Guarded By Refugees

LUENEBURG HEATH, Germany—(P)—Four East German refugees guard a heavy granite stone that marks the spot where German Admiral Friedeburg surrendered to British Field Marshal Montgomery May 4, 1945, at the close of World War II.

The guards, all over 50, stand watch in six-hour shifts, at the site, located on top of a lonely hill. Originally, wooden markers were erected, but these were stolen from time to time, possibly by Germans who resented a reminder to their defeat.

Some 10,000 persons a year visit "Victory Hill." Many of them take pictures of the stone.

and-one-half feet of paper to do it. Attorney Holland F. Elahaven, second from left, displayed the tale of woe during observance of Government Economy Week.

Tom Brown Plants Trout; Thinks There Will Be A Harvest

WHITEFISH POINT, Mich.—(P)—In the spring of 1947 a forward-looking man named Tom Brown planted a crop near this point that juts out into Lake Superior in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Today he hopes that its harvest may mean the salvation of an important but dying midwestern industry.

Tom Brown planted fish. With considerable planning and great care he planted 400,000 lake trout fry along the south shore of Whitefish Bay. He did it without assurance there would be a harvest. He still is not certain there is one.

More Being Caught — But this spring, along these same shores, lake trout are being caught in greater numbers than they've been seen in years. Brown is cautiously optimistic.

"If these are the same fish we planted," he said, "it means a new lease on life for both the commercial fisherman and the sports fisherman. Because it proves that it's possible—despite the lamprey eel—to restock the Great Lakes with trout and other fish."

Brown talks from experience. His commercial fishing is one of the largest on the lakes. In recent years he's seen the lake trout catch dwindle alarmingly due to "the eel"—the voracious sea lamprey that clamps its vacuum-cleaner mouth onto fish and sucks their blood.

Brown has reason to think the fish now being caught are the harvest from the crop he planted. First, he points out, it is known that lake trout remain fairly close to the spawning ground until they weigh about two pounds or more. The fish currently being caught in the area are from 1½ to two pounds.

Experts To Arrive — As his next clue:

"Salt Point (the exact area of the planting) has never been regarded as outstanding for trout fishing in the winter time. Therefore, there must be a perfectly logical reason for the fact trout, in large quantities, are being caught there. The reason, as I see it, is the fry we planted there five years ago."

"If that is not the answer, then this question arises: why aren't the hook and line boys catching trout in similar quantities anywhere else on the lakes?"

Brown can't answer that one. He hopes no one else can. He has contacted authorities of the federal fish and wild life service and he expects a government expert will arrive soon to inspect the current crop.

He believes his "harvest" will be proved, and that the state and federal governments will co-operate in an extensive replanting program that could revive commercial fishing on the Great Lakes.

Young German Serves In United States Army

DARMSTADT, Germany—(P)—Young Peter Fleck, who used to wear the blue-gray of the German Luftwaffe, is back in uniform again—this time it's American olive drab.

Fleck, 23, was yanked into the Luftwaffe air defenses when he was 15. Because of his youth and because his service was "auxiliary" Fleck escaped life in a prisoner of war camp.

Last May Peter got permission and went to the United States to the home of his cousin, Arthur Fleck, of Lindenhurst, Long Island. But Selective Service reached out soon and last August Peter found himself at Ft. Knox, Ky. Soon after training he headed for the U. S. 1st Division and duty in his homeland. He says military service is a small price to pay for American citizenship.

fresh as a spring bouquet...

Theater Sunday and Monday with a sparkling new movie—"Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick." This happy musical ran for over two years on Broadway! Done in technicolor, you'll find it as fresh as a spring bouquet. If music makes you happy, be sure to see "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick"—because sixteen great songs make this movie a crooning achievement!

MEN tease and laugh about her hat—It's something "dragged in by the cat"; But when she wears the silly thing—The men throw theirs into the ring!

Downright glamorous are the giddy creations at Gartner's! One yellow sailor has a gay group of flowers flying off at a precarious angle in front. Navy blues are trimmed with patriotic touches of red and white. Don't be old hat when there's a stunning new hat waiting for you at Gartner's!

STEWARDRESS on plane: You'll either have to stop smoking or annoy the women. Groucho Marx: You mean I have a choice?

When you have a choice to make at Eden's Gift Shop and just can't decide which gift is the right one, why not give one of Eden's gift certificates? This allows the happy recipient the pleasure of choosing for herself from Eden's paradise of gifts. Personally, I'd choose one of the new tiered snack trays. A brass rod holds two or three plates together for smart hosting of gossamer doecuvres or relishes. Made of gay colored pottery or fine china—these are really choice!

Service Station Robbery Solved

Breaking and entering of the Manistique Oil Company service station late Tuesday night was solved yesterday with arraignment of two 17-year-old Manistique boys on twin charges of breaking and entering and destruction of property.

The two, Daniel F. Gould and Bennett E. Russell, waived examination and were bound over to the next term of circuit court under bond of $1,000 each. They were placed in jail in default of bonds.

Arrest of the two young men followed a report by Claude O'Neil, Soo Line section foreman, that a Soo Line shack west of the municipal dumping ground had been shot up during the week with .22 caliber bullets.

An investigation by state police revealed that a stovepipe, windows and walls at the shack had been perforated by numerous bullets. Empty .22 shells picked up at the shack and an empty cartridge box on the railroad tracks about a quarter mile from the camp led directly to apprehension of Gould and Russell.

Police questioned Russell whom they found target shooting with a .22 rifle and later discovered that firing pin indentations on the empty shells found at the shack matched firing pin marks on shells fired from rifles belonging to Russell and Gould.

Further investigation by police revealed that the lot number on the empty cartridge box indicated that the shells came from the Manistique Oil company.

Additional evidence was a boot mark by the rear window of the service station which matched boots worn by Russell.

Faced with this evidence, both young men admitted to police that they broke into the service station about 11:30 p. m. Tuesday while returning home from the show, taking candy bars, cigarettes and several boxes of .22 caliber shells. They also admitted "shooting up" the Soo Line section shack. Entrance to the service station was gained by a rear window.

Russell and Gould were taken into custody about 5 p. m. Thursday.

The Urge To Dress Well . . .

The urge to look your best for the Easter season probably springs from the nature of the Easter period itself . . . the time when buds burgeon on the trees, ready for bursting . . . when the grass roots stir with growth . . . when the soil readies itself for the recrudescence of plant life again on earth.

Whatever the source of the urge, we know we want our attire to look fresh and new as we approach Easter . . . and prepare to contemplate in all of its incomprehensible majesty the certainty of the Resurrection.

Let our modern dry cleaning and pressing plant help you in getting your wearing apparel ready for Easter: Bring your garments to us for expert, inexpensive, prompt service.

Mill Is Given Safety Plaque

At a special ceremony this week the Manistique Pulp and Paper Company received recognition in a nation-wide safety award program conducted by its insurance carrier.

An engraved bronze plaque was presented to the company by William Berfield, of Escanaba, safety engineer for the insurance company.

For a period of more than a year during which nearly 400,000 consecutive man hours were worked, the local mill operated without a single injury serious enough to take a man off the job. This is a record far better than the average in the American paper industry, it is reported.

As he presented the trophy to R. G. Hentschell, manager, Berfield cited him as well as Frank Hoholik, personnel director, and Rodger Smith, superintendent, as being greatly responsible for the outstanding record achieved.

"It takes a combination of earnest planning and constant effort to prevent industrial accidents," he said, "and the Manistique Pulp and Paper Company has proved beyond all doubt that it has that working combination."

Other honors in safety recently won by the company were first place in the George H. Mead Safety Contest for 1951 and first in its section of a safety contest sponsored nationally by the National Safety Council.

Gladstone Lions will entertain basketball players of Gladstone high school at their annual recognition banquet on the evening of Thursday, April 24.

THE INTERNATIONAL WOODWORKERS OF AMERICA, CIO, are not interested in a smear campaign.

We ARE, however, interested in you knowing the facts. For instance—the Rhinelander employees of Atlas Plywood under CIO contract earn 21 cents more per hour on the average than Gladstone.

The Munising Plant, formerly AFL Carpenter and Joiners—Now CIO, was much lower. The CIO began a gradual process of putting them in line. By a 14 cent per hour increase, plus vacation, holiday, insurance and other improvements before the freeze.

All three contracts: Newberry, Munising and Rhinelander, have about the same now on fringes.

Company Paid Insurance on which premiums were and are $5.76 per month.

Six Paid Holidays—8 hours paid for and not worked counted in overtime on end of week. Triple time for worked holidays plus overtime.

Vacations—1000 hours or more constitute first year's service and provide week's vacation paid at 2 per cent, increasing one-half per cent each year up to 4 1/2 or 5 years when the maximum 4 per cent is reached.

Here again CIO Members get more money sooner and for more people than at Gladstone. There is no reason why these added concessions cannot be gotten here.

The wage rates at Newberry are about the same as at Rhinelander since they left the Carpenters and Joiners, AFL, and came into the CIO.

Roughly, one-cent per hour increase means $9,000.00 in your pockets per year.

On Cost of Living Increases alone we have 4 cents or better coming to say nothing of the fringes you can get and should have now.

Atlas has offered the CIO cost of living increases but we felt it was not enough.

We are not joking when we demand 27 1/2 cents per hour increase in all plants represented by us in the Midwest.

With high school basketball wrapped up for the season baseball is creeping into the sports scene. . . No organizational plans have been laid in Escanaba as yet but feelers are already out. . . Highlight of the season will be the Cleveland Indians baseball school scheduled here. . . The Detroit Tigers would also like to put a school in Escanaba this summer, but their bid came after a commitment had already been made with the Indians.

If tentative plans jell at the Pony League meeting Monday evening there will be one additional organized baseball circuit in the city. . . Pony League baseball is restricted to boys 13 and 14 years of age—past the Little League limit but still short of American Legion ball age. . . Pony League is new on the nation's sports scene but has created tremendous interest in other sections of the country where Little League ball has been established.

Considerable interest has developed in the National Hockey League playoff series between the Detroit Red Wings and the Toronto Maple Leafs. . . The Wings lead 2-0 in the best of seven series and will be traveling to Toronto for the third and fourth games tonight and Tuesday night. . . If a fifth game is needed it will be played at Detroit Thursday, a sixth at Toronto April 5 and a seventh at Detroit April 8 if needed.

The Official Baseball Guide for 1952 reveals that Rusty Hiltunen, former Escanaba Bear hurler who was signed in midseason by the Oshkosh Giants of the Wisconsin State League, appeared in 22 games last season. . . Rusty had the second best strikeout record on the Giants mound staff. . . He wiffed 86 batsmen in 75 innings. . . Rusty won three and lost seven and had an earned run average of 4.68. . . As a fielder Rusty ranked 17th among all the pitchers in the league. . . He had five putouts, 10 assists and figured in one double play. . . He was charged with one error for a .937 percentage.

Fans Want Balding Broda Back In Nets

Toronto—(P)—The biggest question stirring this hockey-mad town today is not just who is going to win tonight's third game of the Detroit-Toronto Stanley Cup semifinals, but whether or not the fabulous fat man, Walter (Turk) Broda, will be launched upon his second century of playoff goatending.

A couple of weeks ago, any suggestions that Broda would play more than once—and then only to fulfill General Manager Conn Smythe's promise of 100 playoff appearances—would have brought forth loud jeers from even the staunchest of Maple Leaf supporters.

But now the fans—and no doubt his teammates—are rooting for the balding 37-year-old veteran of 14 National Hockey League seasons.

Aussie Swimmer Shatters World Mark In NCAA Meet

PRINCETON—(P)—How does it feel to be American Olympic swimming coach and develop a world-record breaking backstroke—for Australia?

"I only wish he was swimming us," says Matt Mann of Michigan who tutored Australia's Davies and saw him better than any other coach in the world. . . The brilliant performance of the husky Michigan co-captain overshadowed the nine-point lead built up by Ohio State over defending champion Yale in the race for team honors.

The Ohioans, shooting for their seventh NCAA title in the last 10 years, carried a 51-42 lead into the meet's final day.

"All we have to do is keep that lead, and we've got our divers, Dick Cleveland, Yoshi Oyakawa and Jack Taylor," said Coach Mike Peppe.

Oyakawa, 18-year-old freshman from Hawaii, was the most sensational of four new champions crowned in yesterday's five individual events.

Swimming the distance 2.6 seconds faster than he's ever done it before, Oyakawa won the 200-yard backstroke in 2:07.3, tying teammate Taylor's American and intercollegiate record set in last year's NCAA meet. Taylor was third last night behind Yale's Dick Thoman.

Ten Escanaba Eskymo basketball players, six of them seniors, were presented letters for the 1951-52 campaign yesterday at the Senior High School.

Coach Steve Baltic presented letters to Jim Heiden, Francis Arley, Tom Smith, Paul Baldwin, Warren Johnston and Paul Gundersen, seniors; Fred Boddy, John Peterson and Con Michael, juniors, and George Bartley, sophomore. Gerald Nichol, student manager, also received a letter award.

Coach Baltic resigned his basketball duties at the close of the season in which Escanaba won the district championship.

Jam At Head Of Golf Meet

WILMINGTON, N. C. — (P) — A traffic expert may have to determine the winner of the $10,000 Azalea open golf tournament. Going into today's third round there was a terrific jam in the rush for prime positions.

Five players were tied for the lead at 136 and they were only one stroke ahead of five others. Three more players were locked at 138, only two shots from the front end, in the chase for $2,000 top money.

The 136 group included: Doug Ford, Harrison, N. Y.; George Fazio, Pine Valley, N. J.; Jim Turnesa, Briarcliff, N. Y.; Joe Kirkwood, Jr., Hollywood, Calif.; and Art Wall, Jr., Hoedsdale, Pa.

The 137 club looked like this: Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill.; Al Bessellink, Chicago; Clayton Haefner, Charlotte, N. C.; Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N. Y.; and Jimmy Clark, Laguna Beach, Calif.

At 138 and definitely in this thick of things were South Africa's Bobby Locke, Milton Marusic, Herkimer, N. Y., and Billy Nary, Albuquerque, N. M.

The field was shaved down to 70 players, 60 professionals at 155 or better and 10 amateurs under the 154 deadline.

Rate Gabby Hartnett Greatest Of Catchers

By GAYLE TALBOT

PHOENIX—(P)—It was sitting around and talking time after the Giants' daily workout and the subject came up as to which was the greatest catcher the game ever saw—Mickey Cochrane or Bill Dickey.

"Neither," growled Tom Smeehan, head scout of the National league champs. "For my money, the best anyone ever has seen behind that plate was Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs. He had a better throwing arm than either Cochrane or Dickey, and he could murder you with that bat, too."

"Check," assented Frank Shellbach, the club's pitching coach. "You've named my man. Smart too. Some players thought old Gabby was on the dumb side, but it was the biggest mistake they'll ever make. Dumb like a fox, he was."

Hubbell Agrees

"I'll have to go along with you," came in Carl Hubbell, who like the other two was something of a pitcher in his day. "I can't honestly judge the two American leaguers because I didn't see too much of them, but I don't see how either of them could have been better than Gabby."

It was suggested that either Cochrane or Dickey, going strictly by the record book, show a slight advantage over old "Tomato Face" in the matter of sticking averages. In Hartnett's best year, 1937, he hit .354. Dickey soared to .362 in '36; Cochrane to .357 in '30.

"That's all you fellows go by when you start getting up an all star club—the record book," Sheehan charged in a voice which swayed the draperies. "Any baseball player will tell you you can't go by the book. If you would, we wouldn't need any scouts. The men who played against Hartnett, though, will tell you he was murder, pure murder."

"Steal against him? Not a chance. That guy could wait until a runner was halfway down to second and throw him out by 10 feet. He seemed to have some second sense, which told him when you were going down, too. He'd call for a pitch-out and you were dead."

Stole His Shirt

"Cochrane couldn't throw in the same class with Gabby. Look what the Cardinals did to him in the '31 world series—stole his shirt. They blamed it on the A's pitchers, said that Grove and Earnshaw didn't have a motion to first to help him. That's a lot of bunk. Hartnett must have had some pitchers without great motions, too, but nobody tried stealing on him the changed hands throughout the fourth quarter and the score was knotted at 53-53 with five seconds remaining when Kessler dropped in the winning free throw.

Kessler's moves up to the quarterfinals tomorrow night at 8 (CST) against the Soo All Stars, composed of former Sault Ste. Marie High School and Soo Tech cagers.

Rodman's was a cold quilt last night as they bowed to the Republic Shooting Stars 47-40. Negaunee beat a good Peshtigo club by the margin of a free throw after the final gun, copping a 52-51 verdict.

Easy Win

The powerful Harnies had no trouble with Cooks. The Bombers stayed in the running in the first quarter, at the end of which they trailed 12-10. But from there on out it was all Harnischfeger as the Escanaba team pulled out to a 28-15 halftime margin and spread it to 44-23 at the three-quarter mark.

Scoring leader for the Harnies was Tom St. Germain, who was not expected to be here tonight because of a coaches' meet in Marquette, with 17 points. Ed Gauthier hit 11 as all eight Harnies saw action and made the scoring column.

Harnischfeger meets Lakeview in Wakefield in the quarterfinals at 9 (CST) tonight.

Negaunee and Peshtigo played a rough game from the opening tipoff with the lead shifting constantly to the final gun. At the final second a jump ball was called and Norman Stanaway of Negaunee and Ron Blomberg of Peshtigo stepped up to make the jump.

Double Foul

Both boys were jockeying for position and a double foul was called as the gun went off. Blomberg shot first and missed. Stanaway's gift toss was good to give Negaunee a 52-51 edge.

Hal Trewhella and Bob Ellis had 17 points apiece for the winners. Blomberg collected 16 for the Peshtigo quint.

Rodman's got off to a slow start in the final game of the evening and never managed to catch the hustling Shooting Stars. Republic led 17-9, 26-24 and 39-30 at the quarter marks. The Foxes outscored Republic 10-8 in the final period but it was too late with too little.

Ringuette provided the margin of difference for Republic, working well under both baskets and plunking in 22 points. Chick Perish paced Rodman's with 16 points. Tony Machalk had 10.

Linescore and box scores follow.

When Louise Suggs of Carrollton, Ga., won the Tampa Women's Open golf tournament recently she made it two in a row. Miss Suggs also won the Jacksonville Women's Open.

In addition to his mechanical ability, Hartnett also had a remarkable faculty for calling for the right pitch at the right time, the three former curvers agreed. A batter very seldom got what he was looking for.

Praise For Gus

"From a pitcher's viewpoint it's a wonderful thing to have a man like that behind the plate," Hubbell observed. "I'll always think that Gus Mancuso didn't get anywhere near the credit he deserved when we were winning pennants. It was a real delight to pitch to Gus."

"We would sit down before each game and talk over the opposing batters for a few minutes and we were set. After each pitch as I returned to the rubber I always had in mind what I wanted to throw next. Every pitcher does. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred when I looked that was what Gus was calling for. The hundredth time I might shake him off, and that usually was when somebody hit a triple."

"Of course, I would pretend to shake Gus off on every few pitches, but that didn't mean anything. All pitchers do it, hoping to get the batter to thinking something's up. Now what Fred Fitzsimmons used to do? I've seen him stand out there and shake his head many a time before Mancuso had even given him a signal."

Barbara Marchetti Takes Back Seat To Newcomer

EAST LANSING, Mich. — (P) — A blonde Boston darkhorse, 19-year-old Janet Backman was in a position to make a grand slam finish here tonight to win the senior women's division of the North American Indoor Speed Skating championships.

Janet, who recently moved up from the intermediate division, won both the senior women's finals last night, set new records in both races and both times outskated Barbara Marchetti of Wyandotte Mich., formerly of Norway, the defending champion.

Black haired Barbara, previously unbeaten in indoor competition in nearly three years, also holds the National Indoor Speed championship, the National Outdoor championship and tied with Doreen McLeod of Edmonton, Alberta, for the North American Outdoor title.

Walcott To Fight Charles For Title

PHILADELPHIA—(P)—Jersey Joe Walcott and Ezzard Charles will meet in Philadelphia's huge Municipal Stadium early in June with Walcott's heavyweight title at stake.

Promoter Herman Taylor announced yesterday that the two principles will sign contracts for the 15-round title go here Monday.

The exact date of the bout has not been announced but June 9 has been mentioned as the most probable time.

The 37-year-old heavyweight champion from Camden, N. J., and Charles, Cincinnati, O., former titleholder, each will receive 30 per cent of the gate, Taylor said.

Old Satch Saves One For St. Louis Browns

(By The Associated Press)

Doubt exists concerning the exact age of Satchel Paige but there's none that old Satch still can pitch.

The St. Louis Browns' training roster has the following for Paige under the column listed as "birth date."

Sept. 11, 1892-2;
1896-2, 1900-2,
1904-2.

At the end of the pitchers' list is the following:

z-take your pick. But whether he's 59 or 48 Paige still is no push-over in the clutch.

Bearden Bumped

Old Satch saved a 4-3 decision for the Browns over his former Cleveland Indian teammates at Tucson, Ariz., yesterday.

The Browns entered the eighth inning in front, 4-1, when the Indians suddenly climbed all over Gene Bearden, also a former Indian.

Al Rosen homered, Jim Fridley doubled and Merrill Combs singled to chase Bearden. Paige shuffled in and was greeted by a double but he snuffed out the next two batters to end the rally.

The Indians put runners on first and third with one out in the last of the ninth but Paige got out of that jam by fanning Rosen and nailing Fridley on a grounder.

Allie Reynolds was hit hard at St. Petersburg, Fla., where the New York Yankees suffered a 10-3 lacing from the Detroit Tigers. The Tigers clipped the Yanks' no-hit ace for nine runs and 12 hits in six innings.

The Chicago Cubs scored their 12th triumph in 19 starts by trouncing the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-3, at Mesa, Ariz. Turk Lown and Johnny Klippstein held the Pirates to six hits including a 400-foot homer by Ralph Kiner.

Six RBIs

Davey Williams, Ed Stanky's replacement at second base for the New York Giants, enjoyed a red letter day at Phoenix, Ariz. Williams drove in six runs on a pair of homers and a triple to lead the National League champions to a 7-4 triumph against the Chicago White Sox.

Veteran outfielder Hank Edwards smashed a two-run homer in the tenth inning to give the Cincinnati Reds a 5-3 decision over the Washington Senators at Tampa, Fla. Gil Coan and Frank Campos homered for the Senators.

Home runs also figured in the Boston Red Sox' 9-7 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies at Clearwater, Fla. Johnny Pesky and Ted Williams homered for the Sox and Mel Clark for the Phils.

The Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association beat the parent Boston Braves, 3-1, at Atlanta.

Scheduled games between the Philadelphia Athletics and Toronto, and the St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers were rained out.

Tigers Come Up With 16 Hits, 10-3 Margin Over New York Yanks

LAKELAND, Fla.—(AP)—Only American leaguers to whip the New York Yankees thus far in Grapefruit loop competition, the Detroit Tigers returned to Lakeland today in hopes of breaking the spell the Philadelphia Phillies have held over them this spring.

And as the Tigers came "home," suspicion grew that rookie Ben Taylor may be in the process of sewing up the first base job.

Taylor banged out three singles at St. Petersburg yesterday as the Tigers came through with their biggest hit and run production this year, beating the Yankees 10-3 on 16 hits.

Virgil Trucks

Those three singles, incidentally, gave young Taylor eight hits in the last 12 times at bat for a .470 average since he returned to the lineup March 19.

Manager Red Rolfe pulled him from first base March 12, after a no-hit streak, and pulled Victor Wertz in from right field to give the infield some punch.

Right field replacements for Wertz worked out none too well, so Rolfe switched back, dropped Taylor in at first on the 19th, when he got three hits, pulled him out again after he went hitless on the 20th, then put him in again Thursday, when he came through with two hits.

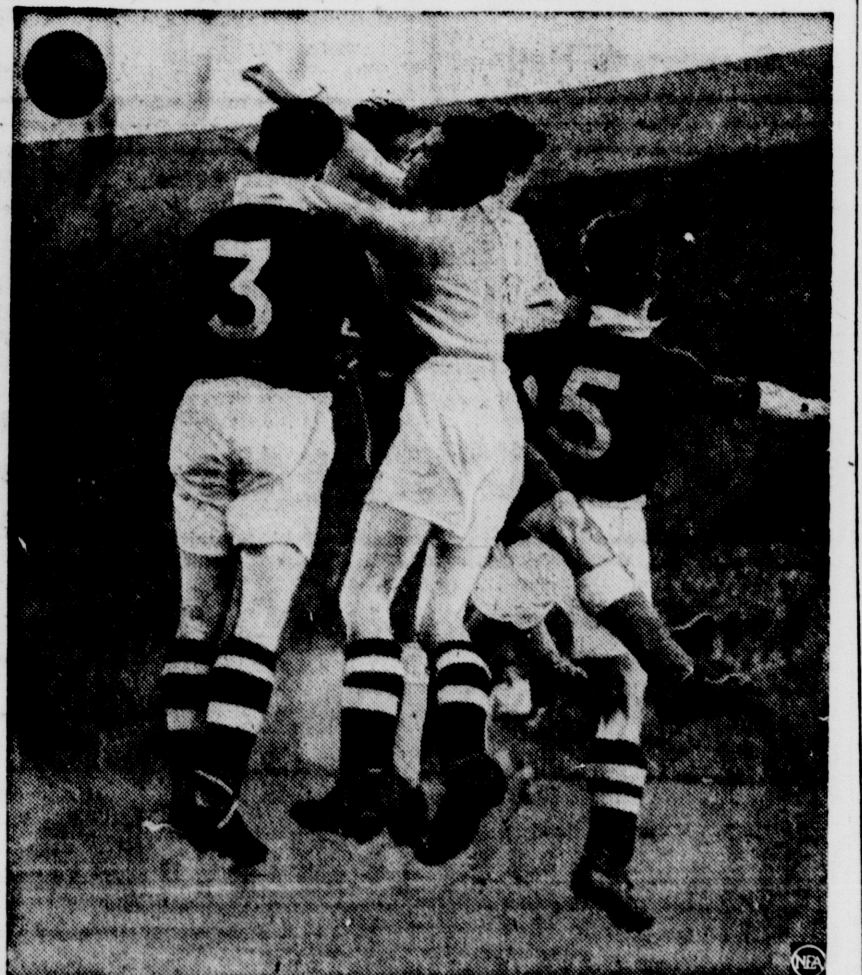

While he was riding the bench during games, Taylor was a busy man in the batting cage at practice sessions. General Manager Charley Gehring was among those joining Rolfe in working on Taylor's batting.

2 O'Clock Hitter

Gehring observed: "He's one of the greatest hitters at 2 o'clock I ever saw." But when 2:30 game-time rolled around Taylor seemed always to have lost his touch.

If Taylor can keep his streak going Wertz can forget about becoming a first baseman and concentrate on right field and the two hitting goals he has set for himself: 1. The American league home run championship, and 2. The runs-batted-in crown.

Taylor and the rest of the Tigers hope their batting eyes are as sharp against the Phillies, who

Johnny Bratton Loses Decision

NEW YORK — (AP)— "It ain't necessarily so," sang happy Rocky Castellani today as he celebrated a no-knockdown victory over heavy-hitting Johnny Bratton.

The 25-year old ex-Marine from Luzerne, Pa., surprised Bratton and the 5,916 paying customers in Madison Square Garden last night by staying on his feet all the way to win a unanimous and decisive ten round victory over the former NBA welterweight king. It was close, though, Rocky was staggered three times.

Now Rocky wants to give his push-button chin a sterner test against former middleweight champion Randy Turpin in England, April 22.

Win or lose, the up and down middleweight from Luzerne, Pa., usually has to hear the referee count over him before he can get rolling.

Against Bratton, however, he

Tourney To Pick Olympic Cage Team Opens Tonight

NEW YORK — (AP)—The process of picking Uncle Sam's 1952 Olympic basketball team begins tonight with only one player having a chance to repeat as a member of the squad.

He is Bob Kurland, sky-scraping, red-haired center of the Phillips 66 Oilers who spearheaded the Americans to the Olympic championship at London four years ago.

Babe Is Behind; 'Gotta Chance'

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—It wouldn't make any difference to Babe Zaharias if she was six or 60 strokes behind in a golf tournament.

She'd still come up with the same answer, "Of course I've got a chance to win. All I gotta do is start playing!"

The Babe reached the 36-hole mark in the $4,000 New Orleans Women's Open Golf tournament yesterday six strokes behind the veteran Patty Berg.

Patty had a 73-74-147 and the Babe claimed a 75-78-153.

Someone asked the Babe, "Do you think you still got a chance?"

"Of course, Boy," the Babe shot back. "I gotta good chance. All I gotta do is start playin'."

Three of the 15 professionals finished in a tie for third with 154's. They are Louise Suggs, Cincinnati, Ohio; Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Texas, and Peggy Kirk, Ponte Vedra, Fla.

New York—Rocky Castellani, 154½, Luzerne, Pa., outpointed Johnny Bratton, 152½, Chicago, 10.

West Palm Beach, Fla.—Tommy Clarno, 146, Waterbury, Conn., outpointed Tito Marcari, 150, Buenos Aires, 10.

Wolverine Pitching Poses Question Mark

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — (AP)— Coach Ray Fisher is counting on eight games to answer the vital question about Michigan's 1952 baseball squad.

The question concerned the Wolverine pitching possibilities on a squad that is without a single letterman pitcher.

And the answer shouldn't be long in coming after the Wolverines open their eight-game southern trip against Georgetown at Washington, D. C., April 4.

Dick Yirkowsky and Milt Heath are the only throwers on the squad with any experience at all. The two southpaws, Yirkowsky from Chicago and Heath from Waban, Mass., won reserve awards last year.

Best of Crop

But Fisher is hoping for something from a pair of newcomers. The two, best of the new crop, are Jack Corbett, a right-hander from Westfield, N. J., and another right-hander, Garbedan Tadian, of Detroit.

Both are sophomores, Corbett, a lean, wiry type and Tadian, a powerful, husky candidate. Corbett weighs 165 pounds, stands five-foot, ten inches. Tadian, a 190-pounder, stands five-eleven.

The Michigan coach planned to give that quartet a thorough workout on the southern tour. For on his pitching strength depends the Michigan hopes as Fisher figures he is adequately manned elsewhere.

The rest of the lineup currently finds Doug Peck, letterman from Dearborn, behind the plate, with Capt. Bruce Haynam at short, Bill Moak at first, Gil Sabuco at second, and lettermen Frank Howell, Gerry Harrington, Bill Billings and Paul Fancher, available in the outfield.

Southern Tour

Moak, a Detroit, is also being considered for third base with the possibility that freshman Don Eaddy of Grand Rapids might fit into the infield somewhere.

Whatever the outcome of the southern trip, it's a sure bet that some unknowns will be heard from. They always are.

The Fisher crew will leave here Thursday and following the Georgetown game will meet:

University of Maryland, College Park, Md., April 5; University of Delaware, Newark, Del., April 7; Fort Meade, Fort Meade, Md., April 8; Andrews Airforce, Washington, D. C., April 9-10; George Washington, Washington, D. C., April 11, and University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., April 12.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—It'll be lefty Mel Parnell and Ray Scarborough pitching for the Boston Red Sox today as the Soxers meet the New York Yankees here.

The off-defeated Sox got back on the victory road yesterday by edging the Philadelphia Phils in Clearwater, 9-7. Ted Williams smacked a long homer.

CONSIDERS ROOKIE

PHOENIX, Ariz.—(AP)—Manager Paul Richards of the Chicago White Sox, disappointed in showing of veteran Al Zarilla, is considering rookie Don Nicholas for a regular outfield job.

Zarilla hit only .247 last season with the White Sox.

Army Engineers Check On Flood

DETROIT — (AP)—The help of Army engineers was enlisted today in Michigan's fight against rising Great Lakes water levels.

Rep. Ford (R-Mich) said in Washington that the engineers have been directed to report on property damage from high water. He said the House Public Works Committee ordered the study at his request.

Damage to shoreline property in Michigan from the near-record lake levels has been estimated in the millions of dollars.

Ford said the engineer corps was asked to report on its survey by mid-May and to suggest how future damage might be prevented.

Meanwhile members of the newly-appointed state flood control committee visited Estril Beach near Monroe yesterday to view damage caused by rain and high water. Most of the village is still under three feet of water. The committee could offer the village little hope of immediate state help, saying there is no money to build needed dikes. Village officials said they will see what federal aid is available.

Hospital Enjoined By Court Decision

BESSEMER — Circuit Judge James E. O'Neill, of the tenth judicial district, Saginaw, granted the petition of Dr. S. G. Albert and others, for an injunction, temporarily restraining the board of trustees and manager of the Grand View hospital from enforcing the rules in effect at the hospital.

In an opinion received by the county clerk, Judge O'Neill said:

"On consideration of the pleadings filed herein and the testimony and briefs submitted by the plaintiffs and the defendant board of trustees and Frank A. Drazkowski Jr., this court is of the opinion that the plaintiff's motion for a temporary injunction must be granted.

"Consequently the court will sign a proper order granting a temporary injunction, as prayed by the plaintiff, until July 1, 1952, or until further order of the court."

Lake Freighters Load Heavier This Season

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Deeper loading of lake vessels will be permitted this year in the interests of national defense.

Admiral Roy L. Raney, commander of the Coast Guard's Ninth District, said the action was taken at the request of the Defense Transport Administration.

The Coast Guard will issue waivers enabling freighters to load to summer limits from May 1 to May 15, and summer emergency limits from May 16 through Sept. 30. Summer load limits normally don't become effective until June.

Hollywood Playboy Beat Her, Actress Anne Sterling Says

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Television actress Anne Sterling has done an about face on her story that she was kidnapped and beaten by four thugs, and now says a Hollywood playboy beat her at his home early Monday.

She did it with Hollywood flair, calling in reporters and having a press agent hand out a prepared statement. She named her assailant, but her attorney, Jerome Weber, washed his hands of the case, saying she had disregarded his admonitions not to talk.

Turkey Ranks No. 1 On Chow Hit Parade

By FRANCIS J. KELLY
WASHINGTON — (AP) — American soldiers like roast turkey the best among all meat dishes, bacon-and-egg-and-vegetables the least. They're strong for fresh sliced tomatoes and buttered corn on the cob, but will have little truck with asparagus or candied yams. Banana cream pie is their favorite dessert, stewed apricots their favorite.

The quartermaster corps furnished the House Appropriations Committee a chart of food preferences based on a series of surveys among the troops. The mess hall hit parade became available today with publication of hearing on the 52-billion-dollar defense budget.

Spared Uproar
We assume they'll make as good a deal as they can for us and their party and our nation.

Maybe that's a false assumption, but the great state of Michigan (as the legislators always say) has been spared a lot of uproar. And so useless, too.

Think of the folks over in Wisconsin. The trouble they must be having.

How would you like to have to bet on the Tigers to win the pennant, but with the understanding that you couldn't really bet on the Tigers but had to put your money down on the White Sox.

'Cause if the White Sox win they will admit the Tigers were the real winners.

Complicated, it must be over in Wisconsin.

Ah! To be in Michigan now that election time is here.

Rubber Plants Close As Judge Fines Six Akron Union Leaders

AKRON, O. — (AP) — Six B. F. Goodrich Co. plants employing 13,000 were closed today as an aftermath to contempt convictions of nine CIO United Rubber Workers leaders. Another 12,000 rubber workers were idle at Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. — many of them in a sympathy protest.

Firestone and General and the smaller rubber — making firms here were unaffected.

Common Pleas Judge Bernard J. Roetz, who sentenced the nine unionists to 10 days in jail and fined them each $250 and costs, received a threatening letter. The scrawled note said the jurist would be taken for a "long, long ride." The judge turned the letter over to police.

Dies In Explosion

DETROIT — (AP) — A 34-year-old workman died in the explosion of a line mix tank at the Ford Motor Co. plant at River Rouge yesterday. He was Herman Dedaux. He was cleaning the tank alone at the time of the blast.

ham, baked hamburger steak and breaded pork chop.

The chow hounds' preference primary put the bacon-turnip greens entry in 51st place, with 33.6 per cent of the GI's shaking their heads at the mess sergeant. The biggest "dislike extremely" rating was reserved, however, for grilled liver with smothered onions. Fourteen per cent just couldn't take that one.

Southern cooking took a body blow when the soldiers rated black-eyed peas No. 22, boiled sweet potatoes No. 24 and simmered leafy greens No. 33 among the vegetables.

They cheered for cold potato salad and grapefruit-banana-orange salad, but 48.9 per cent said no-thanks to chilled asparagus.

Milk turned out to be the servicemen's favorite drink. Hot coffee came in fifth, behind lemonade, coca and tomato juice.

Wastage Reduced

"There are certain things soldiers like; there are other things it is practically impossible to put down their throats." Quartermaster General G. A. Horkan told the Congressmen. "Strawberries are very popular; fish they do not particularly care for."

"We have used the appetites of the soldiers as a basis for our mess menus, which in turn becomes the basis of procurement for food in the Army. If we buy what the soldiers like, the chances are the wastage is going to be less."

Rep. Sikes (D-Fla.) of the committee suggested that the Army do everything it can to economize on the grocery bill.

"When things are left over in your home or mine," he observed, "we get them the next day in hash or salad."

Gen. Horkan assured the Congressmen he was doing everything he could to promote that kind of corner-cutting in the camps.

Big Grain Elevator Burns At Springport

SPRINGPORT, Mich. — (AP) — Damage estimated at $75,000 was caused last night by a fire that destroyed the Springport grain elevator, largest structure in this small Jackson county community.

The fire was discovered shortly after 10 p. m. but it was more than four hours before firemen from 11 communities had the blaze under control.

Equipment from the cities of Jackson and Eaton Rapids and eight nearby townships responded. Firemen had to pump water from community cisterns to fight the flames.

The elevator was piled to the eaves with stored grain and ground feed and seed and fertilizer for the spring planting season.

Face Slapping Nets
Errol Flynn $14,000

NASSAU, Bahamas — (AP) — Movie actor Errol Flynn was awarded 5,000 pounds ($14,000) and court costs by a Bahamas supreme court jury yesterday for the face slapping Canadian millionaire Duncan McMartin gave him in a Nassau barroom.

Defense Attorney A. F. Adderley indicated he would appeal the decision to the Privy Council.

Flynn, who sued for 80,000 pounds ($224,000) said McMartin gave him a "vicious blow" on the face which aggravated an old back injury and kept him from filling a $200,000 movie contract. McMartin contended the blow was "light and friendly."

Factory Wheels Whir But Consumer Keeps Grip On Purse Strings

By RICHARD FISKE
NEW YORK — (AP)—Basic industries produced as never before this week.

And as they kept the factory wheels whirling with one hand, they planned bigger plants and more equipment with the other.

Government reports showed American businessmen plan to spend more than 25 billion dollars this year on new plants and equipment.

That's a new record. It's four per cent above the previous peak, which was set last year.

Not All Rosy

But all wasn't as rosy as the overall figures indicated.

While government spending carried some industries to new highs, the consumer kept a tight grip on eye, perhaps several months hence. At any rate, well-informed government labor officials suddenly were betting against the prospect of a strike.

Murray is standing fast on the basis of Wage Stabilization Board recommendations calling for a 17½-cent pay boost, plus other concessions, including the union shop. Only 12½ cents of pay boost would apply right away, with 2½ cents on July 1, and another 2½ cents next Jan. 1.

The workers presently earn about $2.00 an hour.

Claim $12 Needed
The steel industry has claimed it will take a $12-a-ton price boost to pay for this but government officials have figured it would take only $4 to $5 a ton. Officials have said the industry has only $2-a-ton coming under existing price rules.

Officials figuring in the price talks have been Mobilization Boss Charles E. Wilson, Stabilization Chief Roger Putnam and Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall. They saw President Truman together at the White House yesterday, but none had any comment afterward.

Aides to some of them insisted, moreover, that no price deal had been set for steel. Arnall and Putnam were represented as insisting that any steel price boost might upset the inflation-control apparatus.

But a delay in a price boost for an appropriate period could create a public impression that the administration had stood fast on the price front, an impression which eventual price boosts later on might not succeed in erasing.

Truck Load Limits In Effect Monday On All U. P. Roads

Effective 6 a. m. Monday, truck weight restrictions will be enforced on all state trunklines in the Upper Peninsula, and in most of the Lower Peninsula with minor exceptions.

The order by the state highway department is necessary to protect roads during the spring break-up period.

As the warm weather draws frost from the ground road bases are softened and weakened. If load limits were not applied the weight would break surfaces and seriously damage highways.

Fishermen Ask Mackinaw Delay Its Ice Cutting

MENOMINEE—Commercial fishermen in the south end of Green Bay today sweated out ice-breaking operations while the Mackinaw ripped through 20-inch ice to open a steamer channel to the port of Green Bay.

Fishermen in the lower bay, reporting they received insufficient notice of the icebreaker's arrival, today enlisted the services of Assemblyman Reuben LaFave of Oconto in an effort to halt the Mackinaw until they could lift nets valued at $600,000.

LaFave contacted the governor's office, Coast Guard Lakes division headquarters in Cleveland, and Congressman John Byrnes in Washington.

Parents Advised To Tell Sitter Of Fire Safety

More careful instructions from parents might eliminate many of the accidents that happen to children when left in the care of babysitters, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Parents too often rush out, barely telling the young babysitter where the baby is, the fire safety authorities point out, reminding parents that they ought to be sure babysitters know what to do in case of an emergency.

The National Board outlines those factors parents should check before entrusting their youngsters to the care of babysitters:

1. Give your sitter the telephone number of the fire department, your family doctor and a number where you can be reached. Tell her also what neighbor she can call on in any difficult.

2. If there is no phone, show her how to notify the fire department in case of a fire.

3. Caution her not to allow the child to play with matches, electric cords, or other electric appliances; keep the child out of the kitchen, if possible.

4. If you request her to bathe the youngster, be certain she has had experience in doing so.

5. Leave a first aid kit with her, explain how to take care of simple burns, cuts, bruises.

6. Be sure she understands what to do in a fire emergency; she should first get the child out of the house; then call the fire department; then call you.
